

WHO WAS KEN WEBER?

Goodwill's corporate offices were converted to a Community Campus more than 13 years ago, an idea first introduced by former Goodwill CEO Ken Weber. Under Ken's leadership the center transformed to a vital community campus. The Campus was named in Ken's honor following his death in 2016.

Imagine a place where agencies worked together. Imagine a place where multiple needs could be served for our most vulnerable populations. Imagine The Ken Weber Community Campus at Goodwill.

Located on the southwest corner of downtown Canton, The Ken Weber Community Campus at Goodwill is much more than a typical office building. The facility lives and breathes hope, faith and possibility. The Campus is home to a multitude of organizations reaching out into the community to touch the lives of those in need. Named after the former Goodwill President and CEO Ken Weber who first introduced the Campus idea, the facility welcomes more than 60,000 visitors each year.

Space at the Community Campus is available to non-profit organizations that provide complementing services to the visitors. This unique space provides savings to the organization, high visibility with key populations and tremendous synergies for both back room and customer facing services.

Office space ranges in size from 100 to 5,000+ square feet at the Community Campus. Rented space is typically 40-50% less than traditional downtown space in the Canton area. In addition, campus partners are provided an abundance of additional services. Included in rent to campus partners:

Board room and meeting space
Utilities
Janitorial, Reception & Security
Maintenance including snow removal
Coffee service
IT/Phone support
Printing and mail services and much more!
